

The Fund was 1.18% in April and is -0.66% YTD. We remain defensively positioned and our conviction of a recession has grown given the turmoil in US regional banks. Our exposures remain very low, and at the margin, we have added to Gold and reduced our Energy weightings. We remain net short Consumer, Industrials, Financials, and Technology.

An update of our market views:

- o High likelihood of recession - higher conviction given banking crisis
- o leading indicators continue to roll
- o market breadth is narrow
- o consumer is starting to show weakness
- o earnings estimates remain too high

A CREDIT CRUNCH COULD BE DEVELOPING

In our view, the failure of SVB and other regional banks have increased the likelihood of a recession. Specifically, the regional bank failures have shined a light on the fragility of the group, as they are at a structural disadvantage vs the larger strategically important financial institutions (SIFIs). In order to stay competitive, the smaller banks will have to raise deposit rates, eroding margins, and ultimately the multiple investors will be willing to pay for the stocks. A likely symptom will be a broad credit tightening, of which we may be starting to see the early signs. As seen in the below chart, credit availability has abruptly slowed and we don't believe this will abate anytime soon.

A recent WSJ article (link below) also speaks to this, taking snippets from a sobering interview with ex Dallas Fed president Robert Kaplan about the potential path of the current regional bank crisis. A couple of notable quotes:

“the problem is that more bank executives realize they may face losses down the road on riskier commercial real-estate loans and commercial and industrial loans for which they haven’t set aside enough of a cushion”

“the current bank crisis is in the second or third inning, not the seventh inning”

“I’m afraid we’ve got something coming that we don’t fully understand”

Q1 EARNINGS SEASON AND BREADTH

We’ve long held the belief that earnings estimates are too high, and their eventual deterioration will coincide with lower equity prices. That said, we have yet to see this play out, as a tight labour market and excess savings continue to buoy the economy. It appears this earnings season is setting up similar to recent ones, as numbers come in ‘better than feared’ and spark a short term relief rally. Despite this, there are worrying signs, with multiple companies calling out a sharp drop in activity in March, after a strong Jan/Feb...see CDW, UPS. Market signals are supporting this weakness, as market breadth is awful...ie the Russell 3000 which represents 98% of the investable US universe is up 6%+ YTD, yet the average performance of each stock is -2%. This is not what a healthy market looks like.

Thank you for your continued interest in the Fund.

Sincerely,
