Fund Commentary

Last week was a short week, with Juneteenth breaking up the action. The broader market edged higher (SPX +0.3%), with small caps marginally outperforming (IWM +0.8%). Although this doesn't appear terribly meaningful, under the hood, there were signs of more pronounced rotation on Thurs/Fri. Layer on option expiry on Friday, a short trading week, and capital gains tax deadline in Canada, we saw some increased volatility and divergences into the weekend. On the cap gains change, we believe some of the recent underperformance in the TSX (-3.2% MTD) may be attributable to this, and we could see some reversion as the selling pressure abates into month end.

In commodities, Oil stood out, quietly up 3.5% w/w. The equities have notably been lagging however, with XEG up small w/w. For the month, Oil has outperformed XEG by 13%...the cap gains dynamic we mentioned above could partly have impacted this underperformance. The upcoming week will feature the final release of 1Q GDP data, May PCE, and the first debate between the two US presidential candidates. In Canada we will get a CPI print on Tuesday and GDP on Friday.

We look forward to reporting back next week.

Commissions, trailing commissions, management and performance fees and expenses all may be associated with mutual fund investments. Please read the prospectus before investing. The indicated rates of return are the historical annual compound total returns net of fees and expenses payable by the fund (except for figures of one year or less, which are simple total returns) including changes in security value and reinvestment of all distributions and do not take into account sales, redemption, distribution or optional charges or income taxes payable by any securityholder that would have reduced returns. Mutual funds are not guaranteed, their values change frequently and past performance may not be repeated.

The rates of return are used only to illustrate the effects of the compound growth rate and are not intended to reflect future values or returns on investment in an investment fund.
