Fund Commentary

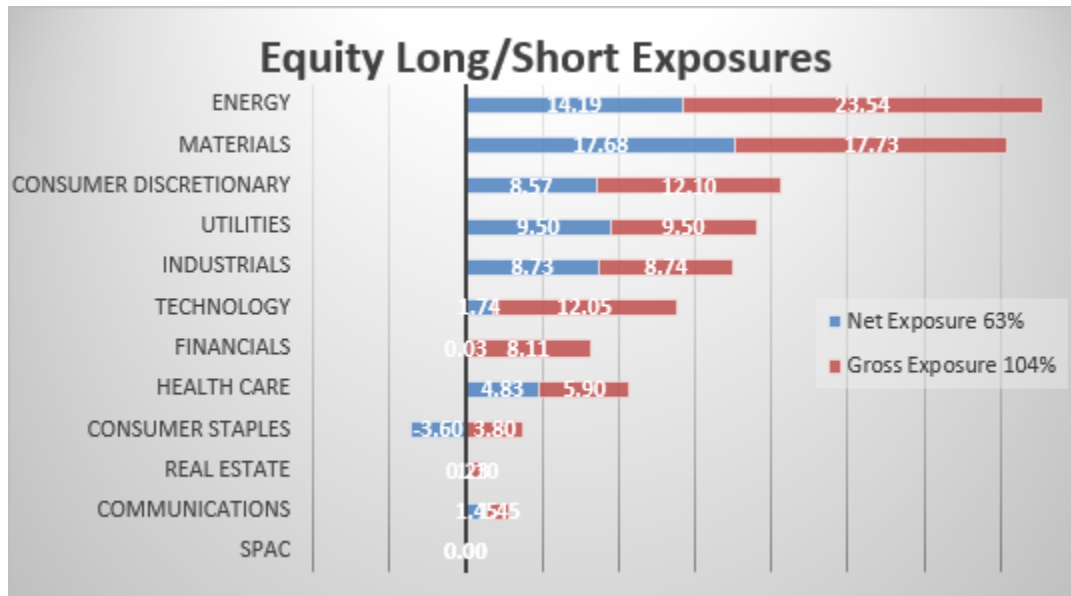

Last week, we observed a reversal of YTD trends, as a lighter-than-expected CPI print and Bessent's confirmation hearing led to strength in both bonds and equities. The narrative of persistent CPI and, by extension higher yields, has kept a lid on equity performance in the last couple weeks. However, the recent data alleviated inflation concerns resulting in a relief rally in bonds and an equity rotation into pro-cyclical sectors such as Energy, Materials, and Financials. The equal-weighted S&P 500 (RSP) and small-cap stocks (IWM) both outperformed the S&P 500 by 1%, indicating a broad market rally with positive breadth.

As we move past Trump's initial honeymoon period, his inauguration today signals the start of anticipated policy announcements and executive orders. Market participants generally understand his agenda, which includes protectionist policies and tax cuts, but details remain scarce. For now, the uncertainty will create swings and volatility, although over time, the impact of this will become more muted. There is no material US economic data to be reported this week, however in Canada we will get December CPI on Tuesday.

Equity Allocation (% Total Portfolio including Futures)

Sector Exposures (% Long / Short Portfolio of individual companies)

We look forward to reporting back next week.

Commissions, trailing commissions, management and performance fees and expenses all may be associated with mutual fund investments. Please read the prospectus before investing. The indicated rates of return are the historical annual compound total returns net of fees and expenses payable by the fund (except for figures of one year or less, which are simple total returns) including changes in security value and reinvestment of all distributions and do not take into account sales, redemption, distribution or optional charges or income taxes payable by any securityholder that would have reduced returns. Mutual funds are not guaranteed, their values change frequently and past performance may not be repeated.

The rates of return are used only to illustrate the effects of the compound growth rate and are not intended to reflect future values or returns on investment in an investment fund.
